

Choices, Choices!

Parents/Guardians,

We have been learning in economics about “opportunity cost”. Your child has learned that when they have to choose between two things the thing they did not choose is their “opportunity cost”. Please help your child record their choices until bedtime. You will see from the chart below that they need to write what they chose in one column and then write what they did not choose beside it in the next column. You may need to help your child with the writing and they will most certainly get more out of the assignment if you will discuss their choices with them (i.e. whether or not their choice was a good one and why, or if they could have made a better choice and why). Feel free to record behavioral choices as well.
